CREDULITY OF MAN AMUSING

GERMAN CHOOK TELLS HOW EASY SOME PEOPLE ARE—HE FUSED AS WILD ANIMAL TRAINED AND GOT TWO YEARS

United Press Service
 BERLIN, Nov. 21.—"I laugh over the credulity of mankind," declared R. Bloch, on trial for swindling.
 Bloch introduced himself as one of Hagenbeck's expert animal trainers. He borrowed a watch from a man on the street, saying he had lost his, and Hagenbeck, who was arriving in Berlin in half an hour with a train load of animals, would be furious to find him without a watch. He promised the man two cents to the circus.
 Bloch testified that he borrowed a pair of gaiters from another man whom he met on the street, and who took them from his own feet. He told him that he needed them to ride a lion. Bloch was given two years.

Victoria Tells How She Got Her Husband

Queen's Diary is Made Public by Authority of King George. Royal Girl Made Proposal Herself

LONDON, Nov. 21.—Queen Victoria's diary, written during her girlhood, telling how she met Prince Albert, fell in love with him, proposed to him, and married him, was published Thursday by authority of King George.

Many legends have been printed concerning this strange proposal of marriage by a girl to her cousin. The following entry, made in the diary October 15, 1839, disposes of these legends for all time, and tells of the royal romance in the young queen's own words:

"At about half-past 12 I sent for Albert. He came to the closet where I was alone, and after a few minutes I said to him that I thought he must be aware why I wished him to come here, and that it would make me too happy if he would consent to do what I wished—to marry me. We embraced each other, and he was so kind and affectionate.

"I told him I was quite unworthy of him. He said he would be very happy indeed to marry me, and seemed so happy that I really felt it was the happiest, brightest moment in my life. I told him it was a great sacrifice, which he would not allow.

"I then told him of the necessity of keeping it a secret, except to his father and uncle, Leopold and Viothmar, to whom he said he would send a courier the next day, and also that it

SINGLE ACRE IS DIVIDEND PAYER

ENOUGH FIED MAY BE PRODUCED ON SMALL PIECE OF EARTH TO SUSTAIN THIRTYTH COWS THE ENTIRE YEAR

PORTLAND, Nov. 21.—Making one acre produce enough food to sustain thirty dairy cows one year with a slight addition of some other food, would be declared a physical impossibility in any land but Oregon, and even here it will not be believed until the Land Products Show is visited.

Clatsop county shows this, with the authenticated statement that it has been harvested there as high as seventy tons in one year. Seventy tons of this feed is 140,000 pounds, in making hays even a major portion of a dairy cow ration, this almost unbelievable tonnage would furnish thirty cows 30 pounds each every day of the year.

In another exhibit which Clatsop county has is a pile of monster turnips, which are declared to have made a yield of 50 tons to the acre. This enormous tonnage would give ten cows thirty pounds of turnips a day for the year through.

In connection with these startling figures, it is interesting to note that on the P. O. DeMoss farm, at Rooster Rock, which is operated under the guidance of Agriculturist C. L. Smith of the O.-W. R. & N. railway, last year, twenty-six tons of corn ensilage was made from one acre of corn cobs. This corn ensilage would furnish 4½ dairy cows a daily ration of thirty pounds every day of the year, and by adding to this ration ten pounds of alfalfa hay, would be sufficient for the best milker. Corn has been proved one of the best of all feeds for the dairy animal, and the results attained on the De Moss place, which have been in strict compliance with instructions furnished by the O.-W. R. & N., were thought to establish a marvellous record.

To appreciate these figures, usual duties required of Oregon land must be considered. On the open range where the forest service leases, three to five acres are thought necessary to feed one steer through the summer grazing months. In the average hay field, one acre is estimated to be sufficient to feed one animal if the yield is good. But here at the Land Products Show one acre is proved to have possibilities when properly cultivated and attended, which surpasses the dream of the uninitiated farmer.

SERVIAN KILLS BRIGAND CHIEF

WHEN DESPERADO REFUSES TO LEAD INTO BATTLE HE IS KILLED AND HIS FOLLOWERS ARE PUT TO FLIGHT

United Press Service
 BELGRADE, Nov. 21.—Isaak Boletinski, the famous Albanian brigand, who with his men joined the Servian army, was ordered by General Rukovich to lead the advance against the Turkish positions. He refused, contending that the Servians should lead, whereupon the general accused him of mediating treachery.
 Boletinski started to draw his revolver, but the general proved the quicker as a gunman, and shot the brigand dead. His followers were then promptly cut down by the Servians.
